Boys In the Valley

By Philip Fracassi

St. Vincent's Orphanage for Boys.

Turn of the century, in a remote valley in Pennsylvania.

Here, under the watchful eyes of several priests, 30 boys work and learn and worship. They live their lives in a methodical way and get along despite different personalities and pasts. Peter Barlow, orphaned by a nighttime murder at his childhood home, has made a new life here. As he approaches adulthood, he has friends, a future ... a family.

Then, late one stormy night, a group of men arrive at their door, one of whom is badly wounded, his body covered with occult symbols carved into his flesh. Upon his death, an ancient evil is released that infests St. Vincent's and the children within. Soon, boys begin acting differently, forming groups. Taking sides.

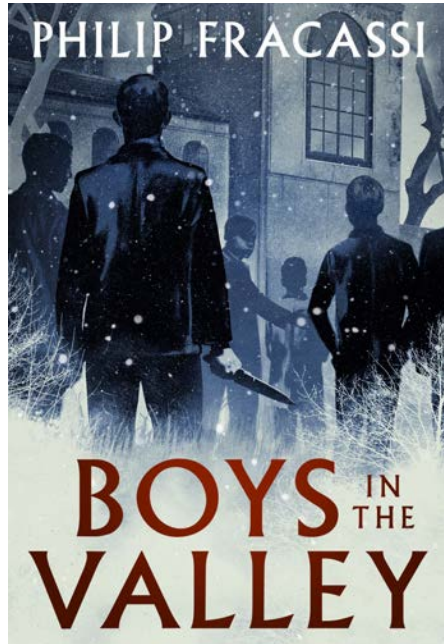

Others turn up dead.

Now Peter and those dear to him must choose sides of their own, each of them knowing their lives — and perhaps their eternal souls — are at risk.

Philip Fracassi is an award-winning author and screenwriter living in Los Angeles. His debut collection of short horror, BEHOLD THE VOID, won "Story Collection of the Year" award from both This Is Horror and Strange Aeons Magazine. "Good and evil battle for boys' souls in this excellent historical horror novel. As poignant as it is chilling, with a fast-paced, unflinching ending, it's the richly drawn characters that make BOYS IN THE VALLEY a standout."

Gothic

By Philip Fracassi

On his 59th birthday, Tyson Parks—a famous, but struggling, horror writer—receives an ornate antiquarian desk in the hopes it will rekindle his creative juices. Perhaps inspire him to write another best-selling book and prove his best years aren't behind him...

As Tyson begins to use the new desk, he finds himself writing copy at an unfathomable speed, becomes so focused on writing that he binges on all-night, all-day sessions that take a serious physical and psychological toll.

Soon, Tyson begins acting strange. Violent.

Meanwhile, a mysterious woman, Diana Montresor, is making inquiries with her sources around the globe for the whereabouts of a certain artifact she, and her family, have been hunting for centuries.

As forces converge on Tyson's world, he faces the hardest choice of his life: Does he let go of his new muse, allow it to be taken back to the void of history where it belongs? Or does he continue to live as the desk's mouthpiece, not only regaining his glory days as a famous writer, but achieving levels of success he's only dreamed of?

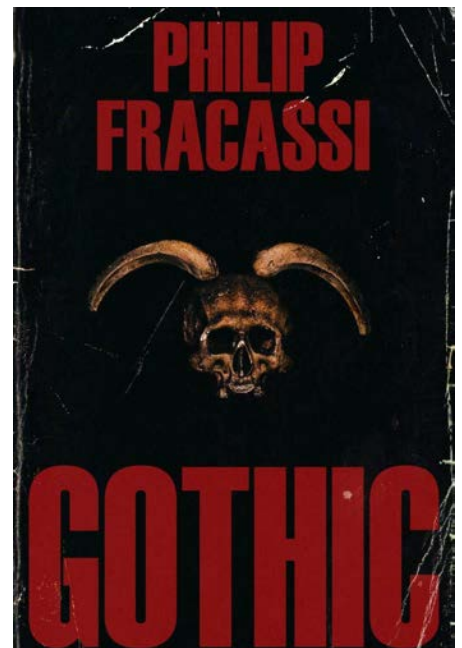

As the desk—and the force that lives inside it—grows stronger, he must choose.

Before it's too late.

The Third Rule of Time Travel

By Philip Fracassi

Beth Darlow, a scientist working at the Langan Corporation, has discovered a way for the human consciousness to travel through time – to any point in the traveler's lifetime – and relive moments of their life. The traveler has no way to alter, or control, the outcome. The traveler can only observe.

When Beth's husband, COLSON, the co-creator of the machine, dies in a tragic car accident, he leaves Beth to raise their only daughter, ISABELLA, and continue the work they both started.

As Beth continues to travel she finds that her timeline – her reality – is being altered with each trip she takes. Under pressure to prove the value of the machine, Beth continues the experiments at a rapid pace, pushing herself to the limit. After one fateful experiment, Beth returns to find her reality altered to a horrifying extent.

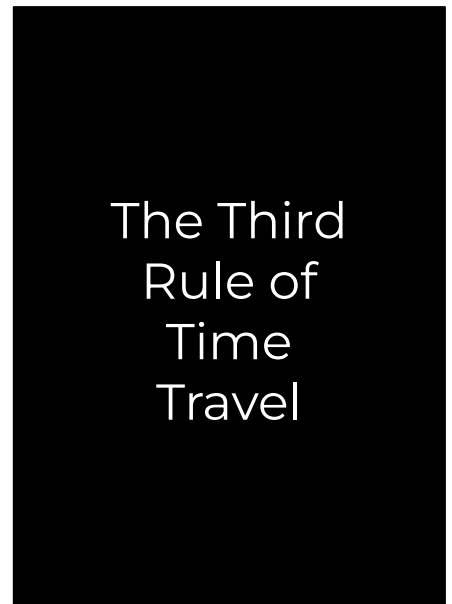

Her only daughter has ceased to exist.

Now Beth must do whatever it takes, pushing the limits of science and the hidden rules of the universe itself, to change her reality once more, and bring her daughter back.

NO ONE IS SAFE

By Philip Fracassi

NO ONE IS SAFE presents fourteen stories of macabre, pulpy terror; a book filled with futuristic noir mysteries, science fiction thrillers, alien invasions, and old-school horror tales that will keep you up late into the night.

Inside these covers, you'll discover haunted dream journals and evil houses, birthday wishes gone wrong, a neighborhood cat that cures any disease, a flesh-eating beach, and mysterious skeletons on a hidden moon base. You'll meet wise-cracking detectives, suburban vampires, murdered movie stars, and monsters of the deep. And remember—don't get too attached to the characters you'll meet on these pages because there's no holding back in this book. Anything can happen, and no one is safe.

Midas

By Tyler Jones

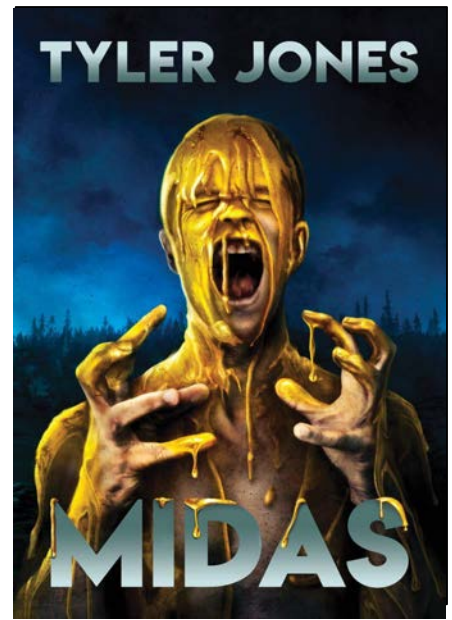

Charwood, 1859. Jeremiah Pevensie is a former preacher mourning the loss of his young son. He stumbles across a dead man in the wood, and on the body he finds a flawless gold statue of a bird. The detail is so perfect that Jeremiah believes the bird was once living. He also discovers a hastily drawn map that seems to lead to the top of a mountain.

Ultimately, Jeremiah discovers a cave that contains the power to transform anything, living or dead, into solid gold. But this gift comes at a terrible price. At the same time, a violent cult leader has been searching for this power for years, and it puts him and the preacher on a horrific collision course.

THE SHADOW OF BANSHEE HILL

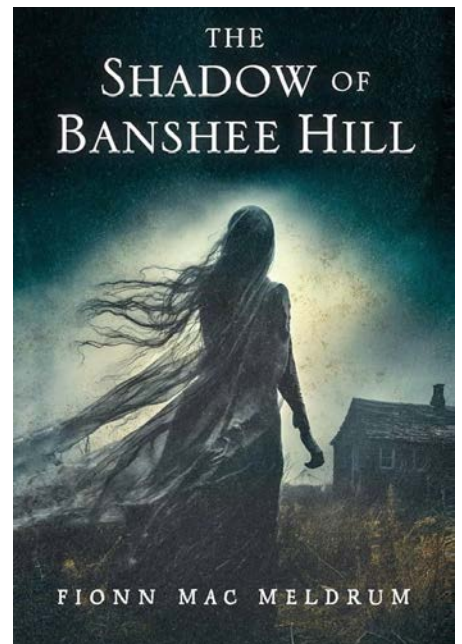

By Fionn Mac Meldrum

In 1818, Cillian Valour, an Irish rebel's son with limited prospects, is determined to marry his longtime love, Martha Ashworth, daughter of a local landlord. When her father forbids their engagement, Cillian turns to the heavens for help in an act of desperation—but it is a mysterious stranger that answers his call. After accepting an offer too good to refuse, Cillian and Martha are forever changed. Together, the star-crossed lovers turn away from the light and cut a swath of horror and misery across the land—until one night in Rome, the unthinkable happens.

Emily Corvo's life in modern-day Boston is upended by the murder of her mother and the disappearance of her father. Learning that her mother was callously slaughtered by something not of this world, Emily vows to rescue her father and avenge her mother by hunting down those responsible. But she may find that only by trusting the enemy can she quench her thirst for vengeance.

Fionn Mac Meldrum was born and raised in Cork, Ireland. His passion for storytelling stems from a childhood immersed in Irish folklore and Celtic mythology, along with the Victorian classics. The Shadow of Banshee Hill is his debut novel. He is currently working on its follow-up, The Doldrums of the Damned. He lives in New England with his wife, daughter, two dogs, cat, and his ever-growing vinyl collection.

VOLATILE MEMORY

Volatile Memory #1

By Seth Haddon

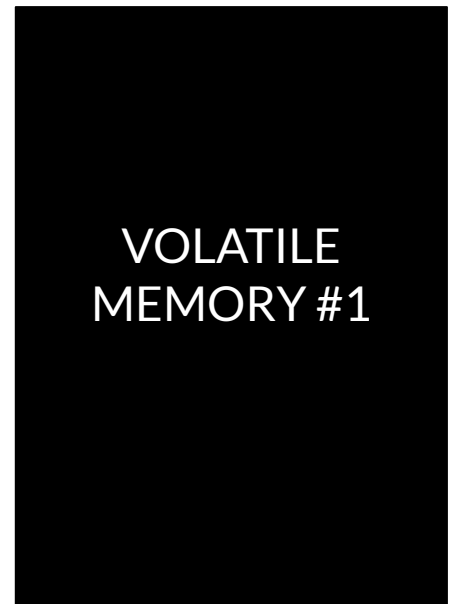

In a galaxy dominated by commercial and military interests, scavengers like Wylla survive on the speed of their engines and the skills of their masks: AI HUDs with the characteristics of the animal they're shaped after.

When Wylla answers a scavenge call, what she finds isn't a payday - it's a woman's corpse, clearly murdered, and a mask so advanced it's a classified military secret. When she touches the mask, she hears the voice of Sable Alzian, a woman who's been officially dead for years. Masks aren't supposed to retain memory, much less identity, but Sable is real, and she sees Wylla in a way no one ever has.

Fending off military, raiders, and the stirrings of their own romance, Wylla and Sable take off after the one person who might have answers about Sable's murder: her ex-husband.

Seth Haddon is a queer Australian writer of fantasy. He is a video game designer and producer, has a degree in Ancient History, and previously worked with cats. He lives in Sydney with his partner and their two furry children. The Book Proposal

Untitled Series, vol. 1

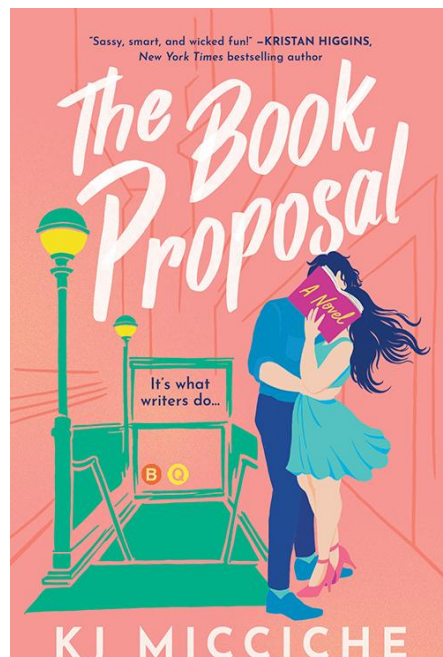

By K J Micciche

If Bridget Jones was a struggling romance novelist presently living in Brooklyn, she would be reincarnated as Gracie Landing. After a horrendous break-up with her ex-fiance, Gracie sends a....colorful drunken email to an unrequited high-school crush, receiving a surprising response. Colin Yarmouth, the MVP of every-sport-ever who gave her a nickname in high school that still makes her cringe actually seems...nice.

The two forge an unlikely friendship as Colin becomes an unexpected source of material for Gracie's current work-in-progress, a project with the potential for a hefty advance that could launch her out of near-poverty. With the deadline looming and her checking account dwindling, Gracie hastily uses Colin's stories without considering whether there could be any personal overlap with other "characters" in his life. In doing so, she risks her entire career and her own love story.

KJ Micciche hails from Queens, New York, where she spent countless hours curled up under the covers, reading The Babysitters Club as a kid by flashlight way past her bedtime. Now all grown up, K.J. runs a non-profit organization that teaches kids with dyslexia how to read. Proud mom of two little girls, she and her family live on Long Island.

Dead Girls Walking

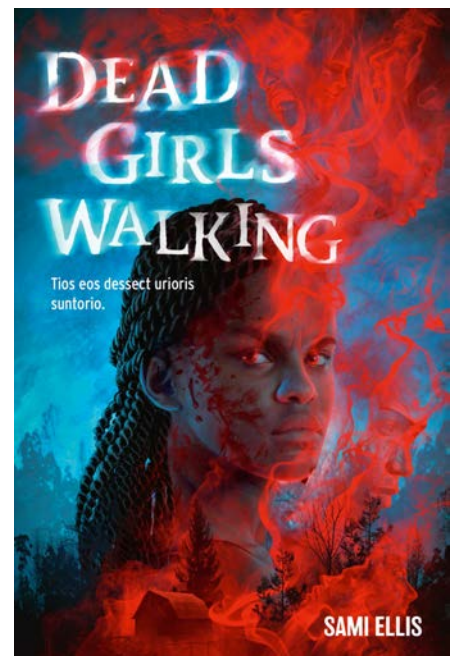

By Sami Ellis

Temple Baker's father is a serial killer. He was convicted of 23 murders, though he only recalls the location of 15; you're bound to forget a few with a body count that high. The only crime she's never believed him responsible for is her mother's disappearance. That is, until he confesses to her murder with only months left on his death row sentence. Temple knows her dad is lying, but he won't back down - too bad stubbornness runs in the family.

To prove him wrong, Temple goes back to the farm that was her father's hunting ground. Except the farm has been turned into an overnight camp for horror-loving queer teen girls, so Temple has to pose as a camp counselor to go body-hunting. Temple can hold her own against murderers and spooky woods, but making friends with girls her age is so much worse. When a copycat killer starts stalking the girls, Temple has to contend with what else might run in the family.

Sami Ellis comes from a huge family that spreads across the Carolinas, and is inspired by the horrific nature of Black fears and the culture's relation to the supernatural. Don't mess with teeth. She writes about people like her family, like her students, and does so across age ranges and genres.

CAMILA NUÑEZ'S YEAR OF DISASTERS

By Miriam Zoila Pérez

Cuban-American Camila Nuñez has always been afraid of the future. Maybe it's because her mami seems to make worrying about her a full-time job. Maybe it's because she's always been stuck between two worlds--her obligatory summers in tropical Miami with her abuelos and her life in boring North Carolina with her parents. Or, you know, just maybe it's feeling constantly judged and uncomfortable in her own skin. Anxiety, especially early morning panic attacks, have been Camila's constant companion as long as she can remember.

So when Camila's best friend brings over a tarot deck for her birthday, she freaks out when the cards seem to be predicting genuinely terrible things on the horizon for her 17th year. As the year unfolds, the cards seem to be spot on—is the three of swords hinting at her papi's affair? Is the devil card proof that her cute, new love interest is going to break her heart?

Whether she likes it or not, Camila is forced to reckon with all the ways her fear about the future is ruining her life, and what it will really take to get back on track.

Miriam Zoila Pérez is an award-winning queer Cuban writer and activist. Their work, which mostly looks at the intersections of race, health and gender, is motivated by a desire to understand how the world shapes our bodies, and to explore all the many solutions that already exist for some of our biggest problems, but simply don't get the attention they deserve.

Monstersona

By Chloe Spencer

After her parents' divorce, 16 year old Riley Grishin is forced to move from Portland, Oregon all the way to Little Brook, Maine, a small town that serves as the headquarters for Titan Technologies, an international tech laboratory. Having left her friends and father behind, Riley spends most of her days running through the woods with her dog Tigger, and eavesdropping on her classmates—in particular, the gorgeous, but very strange, Aspen Montehugh.

On the night of the homecoming game, Riley wakes up to find her town on fire, terrorized by an unseen monster. With flames spreading rapidly, Riley and Tigger have no choice but to pile into her beat-up pickup truck and flee. Speeding out of town, they come across the only other survivor: Aspen.

When Riley and Aspen finally reach safety, they realize something far more sinister is afoot. According to the news, all other Titan Tech laboratories on the East Coast have been attacked. And even worse, they're being followed by an SUV with blacked out windows. With all air travel grounded, Riley has no way to fly back to her dad, so she and Aspen embark on a cross country road trip, all the while pursued by men with guns, mad scientists, and the monstrous truth. Slowly, Riley realizes something's not quite right with Aspen, which puts her feelings for her—and her own humanity—to the ultimate test.

Against the Stars

By Christopher Hartland

When an attempt to kiss his best friend becomes a prom night disaster, Elliot Dove's confusion surrounding his sexuality is thrown into overdrive. Desperate for some clarity, Elliot turns to GlimpseTech, a company offering all over-sixteens a 44-second glimpse of what lies ahead. But Elliot's Glimpse only makes him more confused, showing him in an intimate moment with Sebastian Glass, the 'one gay kid' in his year at school.

Seb, meanwhile, hates Glimpses, and blames the technology for his dad's absence. But unlike the protesters picketing GlimpseTech headquarters, Seb has other things to worry about, like his mum's depression and the man showing up at his house demanding money. Then he bumps into Elliot, and bumps into him again, until it seems the universe is pulling them together.

Despite the vast differences in their lives, Elliot and Seb find something they were missing in each other, and soon friendship blooms into something more. But tensions are growing in the outside world. Rumors of the so-called 'Last Day'--the day beyond which no one has seen in their Glimpse--are causing widespread panic. With the end of the world an increasingly real prospect, a seemingly uncrossable class divide, and the secret of Elliot's Glimpse a ticking time bomb, the universe may have other plans for Elliot and Seb.

Against The Stars is an exploration of class, love, and destiny, perfect for fans of Adam Silvera's THEY BOTH DIE AT THE END. This speculative, queer romance will have readers desperate to know how things turn out, but if given the choice, would you glimpse ahead?

Based in West Yorkshire, England, Christopher Hartland is a queer writer with a particular love for sci-fi, fantasy, and romance. Despite going on to complete a physics degree, "author" was always his answer to the childhood question of "what do you want to be when you grow up?"

When not writing, you can find him nerding out over musical theatre, playing Dungeons and Dragons, or endlessly rewatching Doctor Who.

The Alpha's Son

Alpha Series, vol. 1

By Penny Jessup

Max Remus couldn't care less about finding his mate—unlike the rest of his fate-obsessed pack. He totally prefers hanging with his bestie, eating his dad's steak sandwiches, and drawing in his trusty sketchbook.

But all that is about to change at the Blue Moon Festival—a summer camp where Elite Pack wolves go to find their mates. The festival is a rite of passage for every teen werewolf, and this year's festival will be one to howl home about. The alpha's son, Jasper Apollo, is attending for the first time.

When Max finds himself inexplicably linked with the exceptionally handsome but totally jerk-faced heir, he's forced to grapple with the unexpected feelings clawing at his soul.

If Max rejects his destiny, will fate's bite be worse than its bark?

Netflix's Young Royals meets Teen Wolf—the first installment in a thrilling new series, The Alpha's Son is a heart-wrenching queer, wolf shifter romance; full of yearning, comedy, and adventure

Blurbs:

"The Alpha's Son is an adorable debut filled with humor and intrigue. With the perfect amount of teen angst and awkwardness, Jessup weaves a story, who's end you won't see coming, about following your heart and knowing your worth." - Jordon Greene author of Every Word You Never Said

Penny Jessup started writing at an early age. Whether Riverdale fanfiction or werewolf romances, she cut her teeth online, and now works as a freelance copywriter. She has a bachelor's in creative writing and lives in upstate New York with her partner and their dog, Taco. She loves anime, baking while listening to her favorite podcasts, and hiking in the woods near her house.

Chasing the Alpha's Son

Alpha Series, vol. 2

By Penny Jessup

It's been three months since their kiss on the beach and Max hasn't heard a whisper from Jasper.

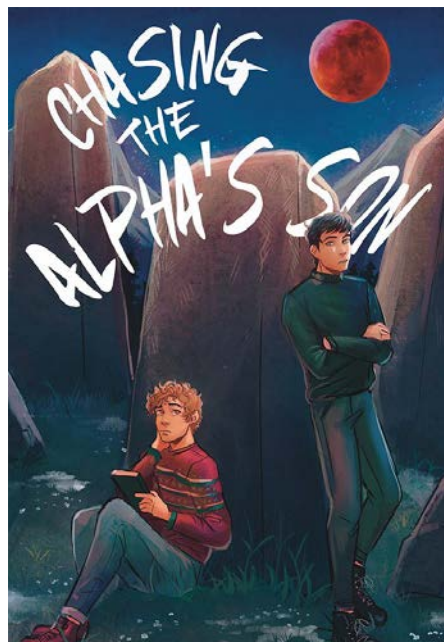

With Christmas fast approaching, and despite vowing he would chase Jasper to the ends of the world, Max is ready to give up. Until Alpha Jericho announces he's sending a select envoy of Elite Pack wolves to an allied wolf-pack stationed high in the rocky mountains, where they will bear witness to a Blood Moon. A week in a cozy ski-lodge sounds as romantic as you can get, so Max decides to give things with Jasper one last shot.

But life in the mountains is rockier than expected and finding alone time with Jasper is harder than Max thought. Political unrest between the packs is galvanizing Jasper's determination to keep them apart, and new and old suitors are emerging in the pursuit of Jasper's affections.

Running headfirst into snow storms, Max begins to question if the destiny he's been chasing is what he really wants. And when the Blood Moon arrives, bringing irrevocable change that no one saw coming, Max and Jasper's connection will be put to the ultimate test.

Will they find the path between souls among the snow covered peaks or will the mountain roads lead them to an unexpected destiny?

Wicked Little Things

By Justin Arnold

When his cousin is murdered, recently outed 16 year old Dane Craven, is forced to return to his unbearably small hometown of Jasper Hollow. It would be easy enough for him to keep his head down if it weren't for three inescapable facts.

One, Dane is a witch with fiery powers he can barely control.

Two, he's been claimed by a coven of fashion forward 'mean girls' desperate to give him a makeover.

And three, Dane is pretty sure he's responsible for the death of his cousin.

Being the gay best friend to a trio of teenage witches was never high on Dane's list of aspirations, but fortunately for him these girls have the necromantic powers he needs to figure out who killed his cousin. Plus, he could do with some new clothes.

While on the hunt for his cousin's killer, Dane discovers life in Jasper Hollow isn't all bad. There's the cute boy who works at the local coffee shop and enjoys long walks in the woods, for one.

But when the rabbit-faced killer comes for Dane, he'll be forced to come to terms with who he is and where he belongs before it's too late for him and everyone in Jasper Hollow.

Justin Arnold is a storyteller, occasional comedian, and junk food connoisseur. He lives in the bluegrass region of Kentucky, where gnarled woods and abundant ghost stories fuel his inspiration.

When he isn't writing, he spends most of his time trekking the wilderness, planning getaways, and experimenting with ways to make the most amazing vegan cheeses and pizza crusts (he's dangerously close!).

"Think The Craft meets Mean Girls, with a pinch of AHS: Coven, then make it super gay. A bitchy, witchy, spook-fest that delivers scares, gore, and so much more! Camp, funny, and with moments of devastating darkness, this book really is full of Wicked Little Things." - Rory Michaelson, author of The Lesser Known Monsters Trilogy

"Throw The Chilling Adventures of Sabrina, Are You Afraid of The Dark, Mean Girls, and Heathers into a cauldron, stir in a little queerness (for flavor) and you've got this book! Wicked Little Things brings the creep factor of urban legends, and mixes in humor, found family vibes, oh yeah, and a possible deal with the "devil" to create a sassy, spooky read that readers will come back to again and again." - Lou Wilham, author of The Hex Next Door

Skeleanor the Decomposer

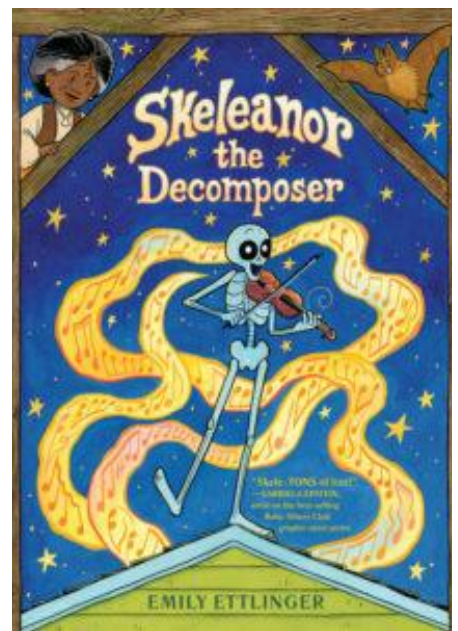

By Emily Ettlinger

Skeleanor loves music more than life itself. There’s just one problem: She has a bit more rattle than rhythm at the moment. No matter what type of instrument she plays—from the fiddle to the xylobone—she always seems to scare the people of Little Casketon away. But with the Little Casketon Summershine festival coming up, and the town band missing a player, maybe Skeleanor (along with the help of her best friend, Batima) could show people her skills and finally take center stage.

Hilarious and heartfelt, Skeleanor the Decomposer by debut author and illustrator Emily Ettlinger is a story about chasing your passions no matter what other people say. Sometimes, all you need is a dream, your friends, and a little music.

Emily Ettlinger is an artist from almost-DC, Maryland. When she’s not drawing, you can find her working on one of an infinite number of sewing, furniture, or toy-making projects. She graduated from the Rhode Island School of Design with a degree in illustration.

Helena Wiktoria

By Katarzyna Witersheim

Eighteen year old Helena Wiktoria, heir to a wealthy Silesian magnate, throws the society gossips into a tizzy when she returns to her hometown, ready for marriage. Her hand is immediately sought after by noble and well-bred men, not least among them Count Konstany Scholz.

But though Count Scholz is the best political match - rich, powerful, beautiful, and with secrets of his own - Helena cant resist the draw of her childhood friend, Artur. Artur is no match for Count Scholz' status or wealth, but he can't stay away from Helena either.

When a disaster strikes Helena Wiktoria's mines and threatens to ruin her in society, which man will be her savior?
